Paul G. Goodman Retired Partner, Consultant, and Assistant Vice-President

B.Com, FCA, FCIRP, FIIC

Paul is a Fellow Chartered Accountant who, for over 35 years, has applied his technical knowledge, enthusiasm, and experience in solving clients' problems and addressing various issues in the insolvency specialty.

Paul has expertise in dealing with retail and wholesale trade, fish processing, light manufacturing, construction, real estate, hospitality, IT, and a number of different types of service industries. He has served clients while acting as trustee in bankruptcy and trustee under proposals. He has provided consulting, agency, and receivership services to secured lenders and other creditors and clients. He has been an expert witness in the courts of all four provinces in Atlantic Canada. He has been a court-appointed interim receiver and monitor for various special purposes.

In addition to his experience in dealing with various types of business, Paul has provided services and advice to individuals, including personal bankruptcy, proposals, consumer proposals, and general consulting advice.

In his previous professional life, as a partner in a large international accounting firm, he undertook senior management and professional responsibilities, including Chairman of the firm's Personal Bankruptcy Standing Committee, National Coordinator of Insolvency Office Operational and Practice Review, Member of the Financial Advisory Services Policy Committee, Co-Chair of the Insolvency Policy and Practice Committee, Member of the Partnership Board, and Partner in Charge of the Halifax Office FAS Group and the Atlantic Canada FAS Practice.

Paul has lectured on insolvency, accounting, and various financial topics at universities, Nova Scotia Barristers Society, law schools, business associations, conferences, and numerous professional development programs. He has also authored a number of papers and appeared or been quoted in various media on insolvency matters.
